Dear Dan:

In a recent "Status of Deliveries" report from R&W we noticed that one (1) K Rack was on hand at the Contractor's plant. Apparently this Rack is complete except for the testing phase.

This fact prompted us to write the contractor with the view in mind of obtaining this rack since we still require one (1) each to fullfill our requirements. As you can see from the attached letter from Dean DeSarzana, this rack is in excess as result of Customer A cancellations. Apparently we must wait for one (1) K Rack to be supplied to us from Customer A.

The purpose of this letter is to call your attention to the fact that there is one K Rack already fabricated at the contractor plant. If Customer A continues to have a requirement for our K Rack, which is evidently being used, then would it be possible to authorize this excess R&W K Rack to us so that we can fullfill our obligations?

Sincerely,

STATINTL
